JHSUM YEAR IN REVIEW 2006-2007: A Year of Collaboration

This year JHSUM broadened our collaborative partnerships to exhibit in a wider array of venues and provide an even richer inheritance of shared stories to carry forward for generations.

Our annual meeting at the Minnesota History Center capped our year-long collaboration with Minnesota Historical Society’s (MHS) United States Holocaust Museum traveling exhibit Life in the Shadows: Hidden Children and the Holocaust. Esther Ackos Winthrop, a hidden child in Greece and her niece Laura Callof brought this story to life. JHSUM’s presence on the Web reunited the Ackos family after 60 years with relatives that survived the Holocaust.

We expanded our cemetery project, funded in part by the United Jewish Fund and Council of St. Paul, working with Minneapolis Talmud Torah and Beth Jacob Congregation Sunday School students to record information in the Minneapolis Jewish Cemetery and the Sons of Jacob Cemetery. The data will be incorporated in the International Jewish Cemetery Project’s effort to catalogue every Jewish burial site throughout the world.

JHSUM launched a World War II Oral History Project completing more than 20 compelling interviews illuminating Midwestern Jewish experiences in the war effort. We partnered with the MHS Minnesota Greatest Generation Project and the Library of Congress Veterans History Project ensuring Upper Midwest Jews their place in this important 20th century story. One can explore this topic further in JHSUM’s biennial history journal, Prairie Perspectives: Our Jewish Veterans Remember World War II, available now.

We also provided historical content and several genealogy programs for the Sabes JCC Tychman Shapiro Gallery exhibit Alexandra Roszenman & Beth Grossman: Unfolding Time; Stories of Migration.

In a historic collaboration, JHSUM joined the Minnesota Digital Library Coalition (MLDC), a group of more than 75 Minnesota cultural heritage institutions that are creating a computer-accessible collection of photos, maps and documents. The MLDC’s Minnesota Reflections database broadens access to 500 JHSUM photographic images for researchers, educators, students and the public. Partial funding was provided by the Oren and Sharron Steinfeldt Family Photography Fund.

Work began on our Sheltering Home Chronicles’ Minneapolis Central Library Fall ’07 exhibit, I Couldn’t Live at Home, an unprecedented multi-media performance series partnering with more than 100 community organizations and artists. The art is inspired by almost a century of stories belonging to young residents, their families, caregivers and communities surviving the North Side Minneapolis building that once was the Jewish Sheltering Home for Children. The initiative culminates in Spring ‘08 with an exhibit at MHS in conjunction with Minnesota’s sesquicentennial celebration.

We continued our summer University student internship program funded by the Helen and Leo Wolfs International Projects Fund just in time to relocate our Eloise and Elliott Kaplan History Center archives to the lower level of the Barry Campus. We have a new office motto: “From your attic to our basement.”

This year staff renewed our commitment to the mission of the Society with wonderfully innovative endeavors connecting yesterday with today, children with adults, and Jews with non-Jews all within the framework of vibrant stories from Upper Midwest Jewish life. We thank our members, board of directors and volunteers. We could not do it without you as our most important collaborative partners.
